Martha—

Drama has been a blast. It was lots of fun being in "The Bell" together. It's a pity that our talents went ~~#~~ unnoticed though! Good luck always to a wonderful girl.

Pat Wright (a fellow drama student).

MARTHA,
WE'VE REALLY HAD A LOT OF FUN WORKING TOGETHER AS OLD LADIES IN "THE BELL". GOOD LUCK AND IN THE BIG WIDE TO YOU WORLD.

Woodland scenes recall reflections in life

A quiet pond receives the reflections of the woodlands around it. These natural reflections serve as reminders of each person's reflections upon his own environment and its influence upon his life.

School life is a reflection of each student and faculty member whose efforts build its pool of character. It becomes enriched by the variety of personal contributions in the fields of drama, music, service, sports, and studies. The quality of a school reflects the participation of each student.

Present efforts and achievements will be mirrored in the future success of personal, professional, and community life, for "What I am to be, I am now becoming." Reflections of occurrences form a continuous pattern in daily life and in natural surroundings.

What does the year hold in store? By gazing intently into the crystal ball, these students hoped to find the answer.

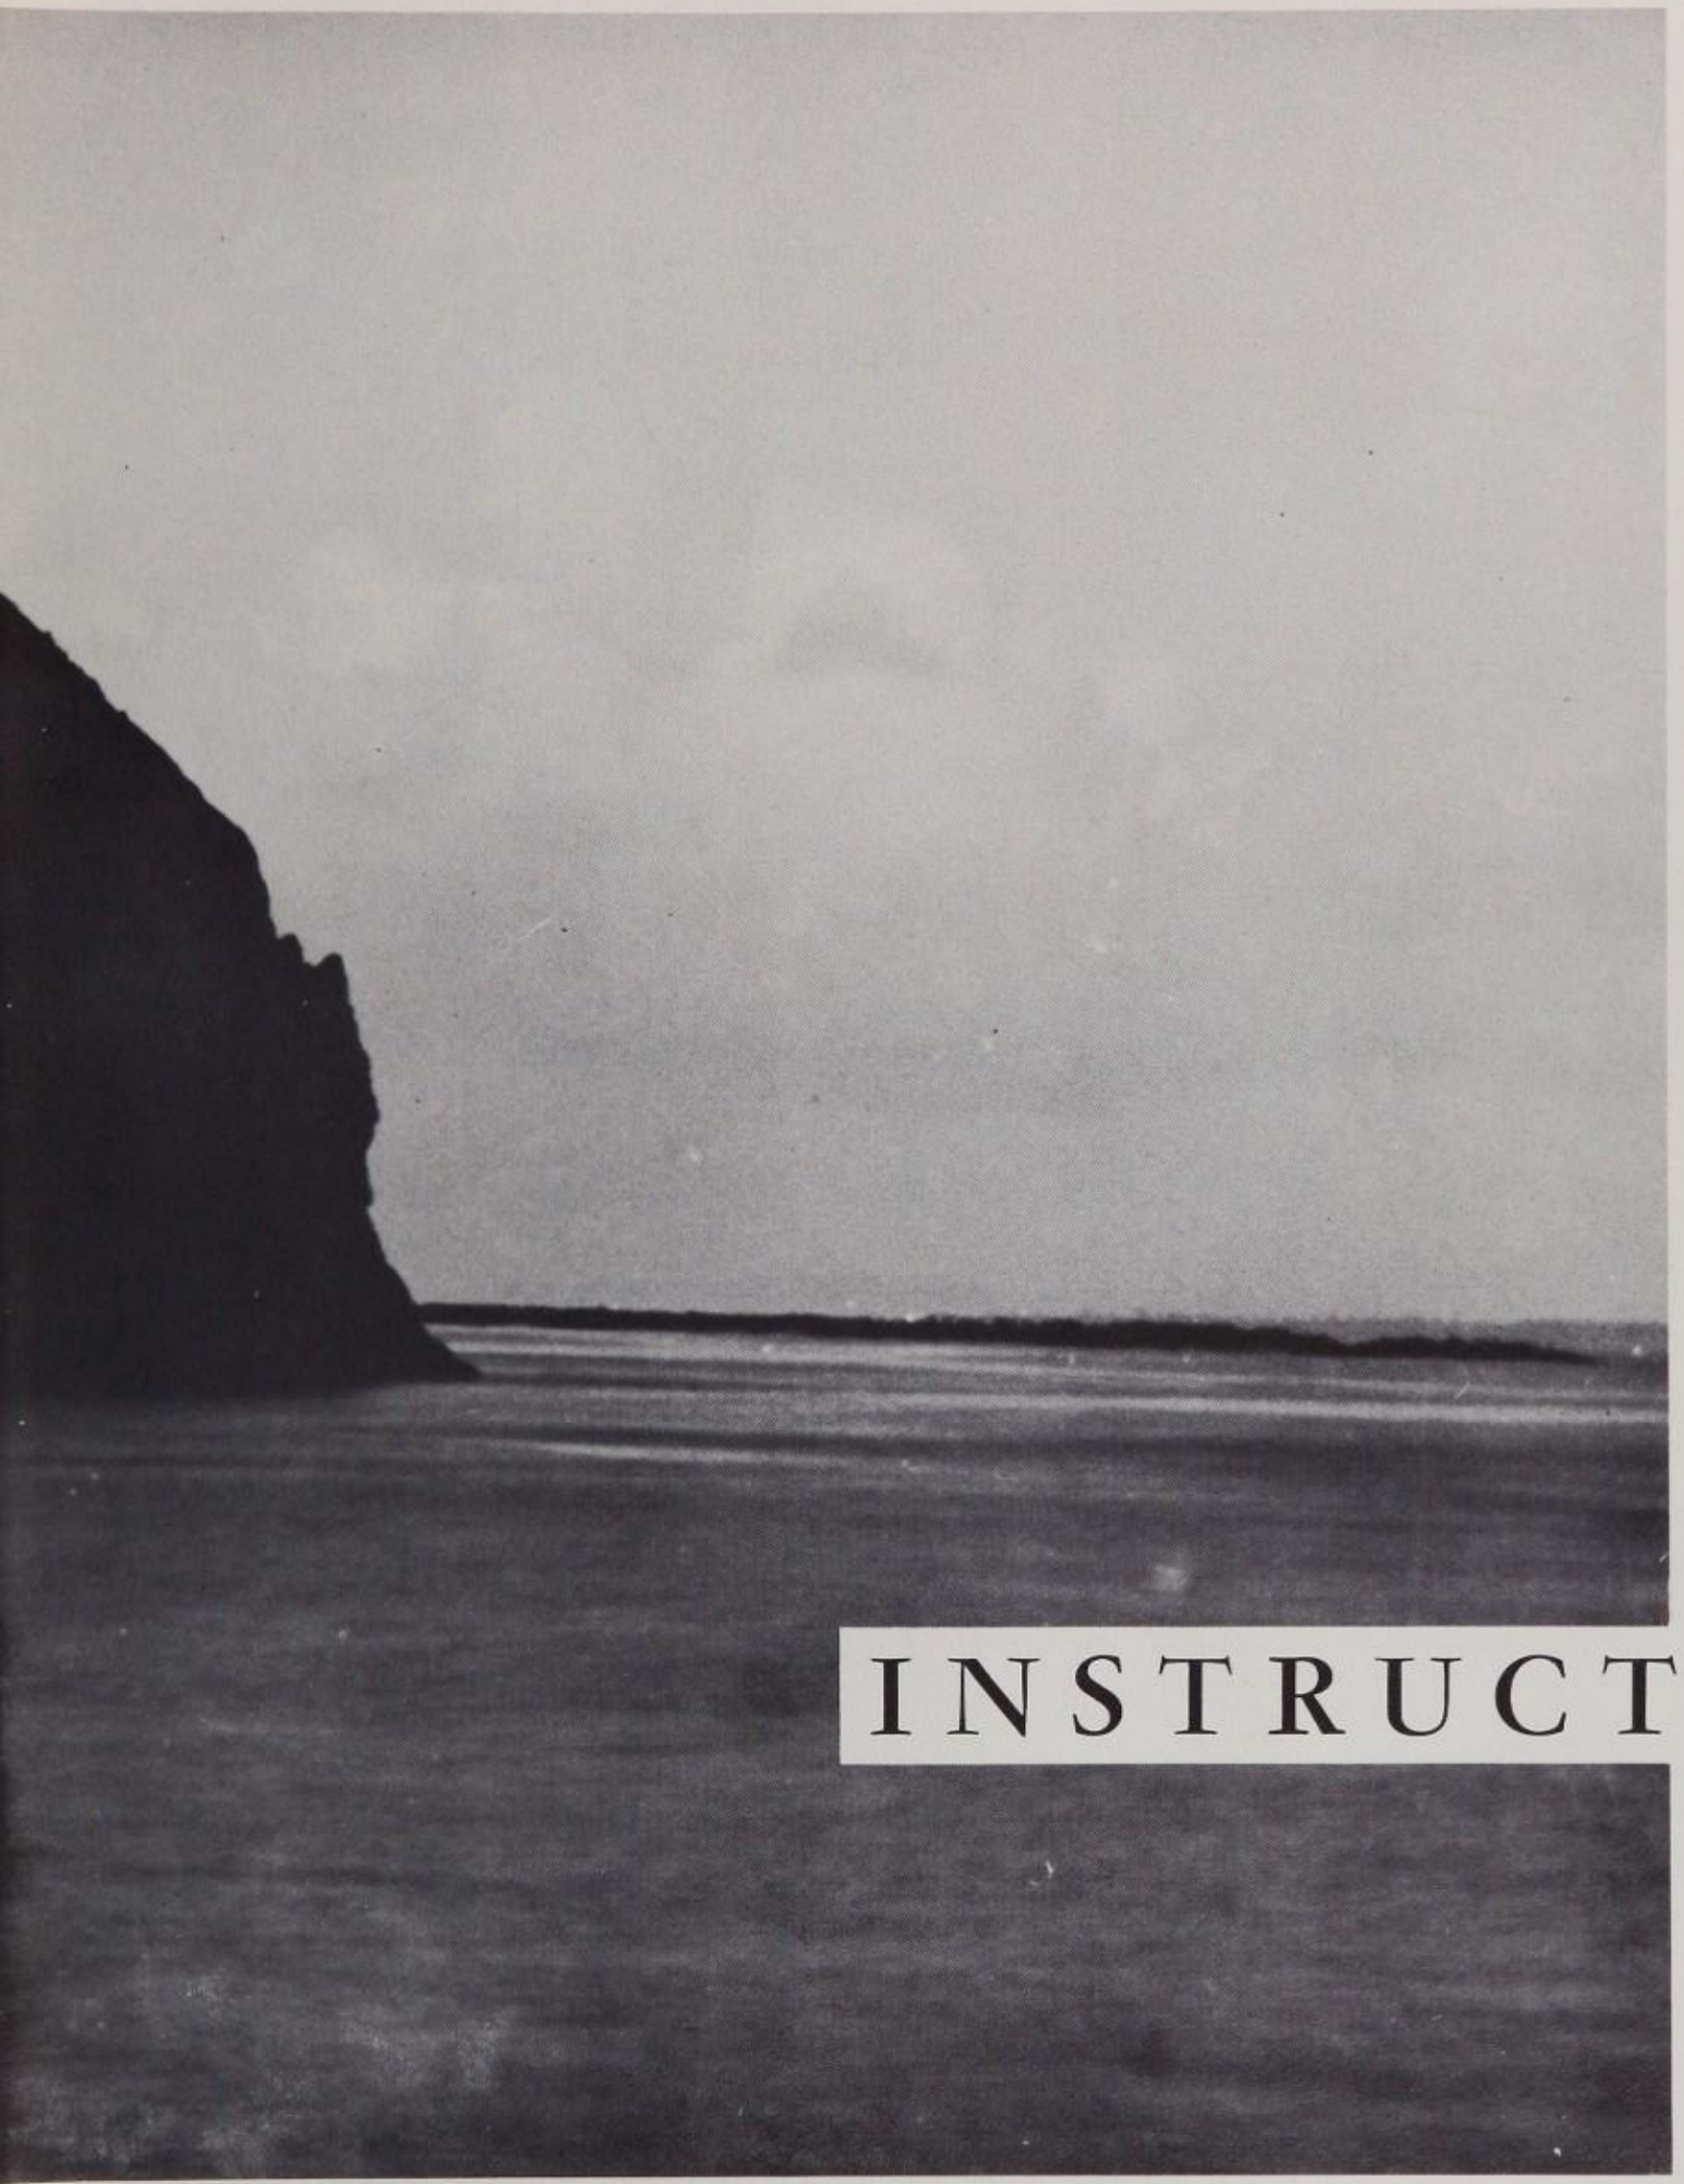
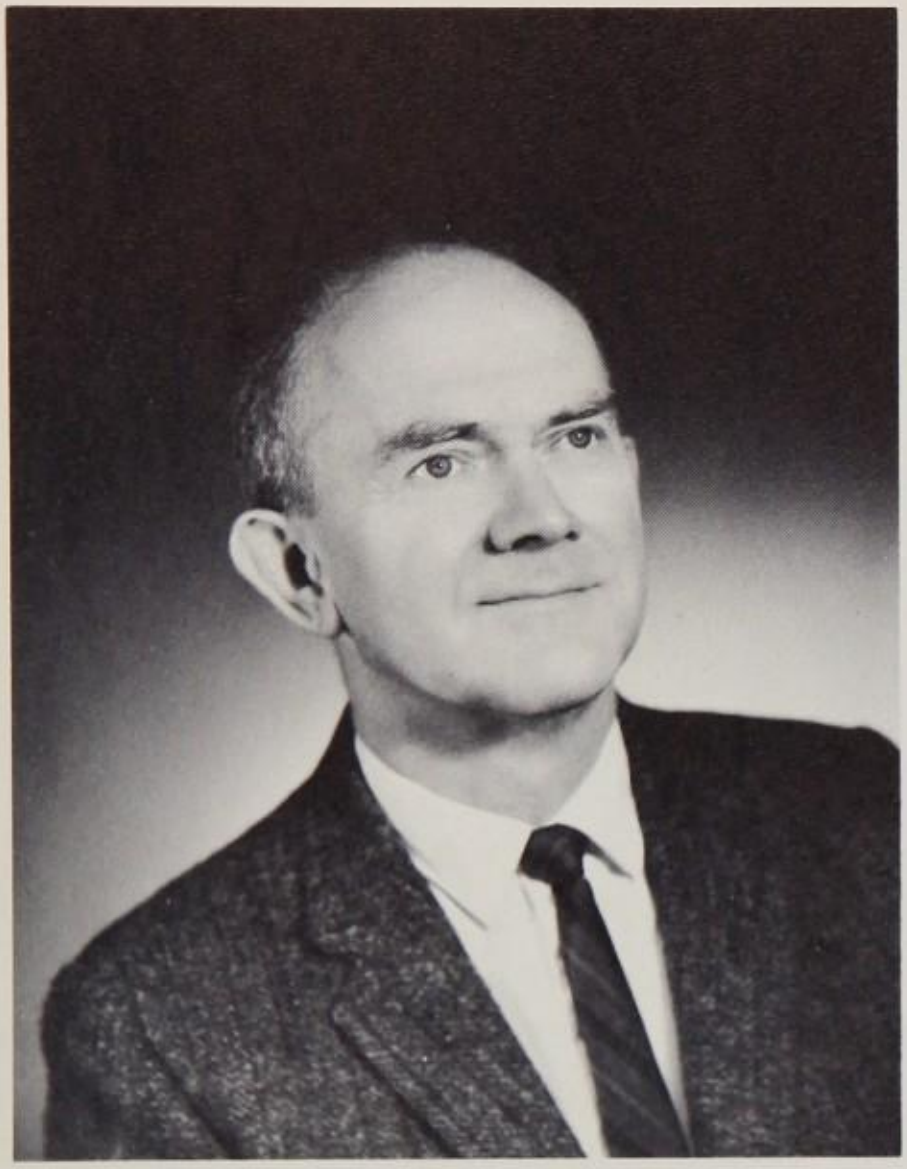
As a lighthouse guides ships in their journeys, so does the faculty guide students in their quest for knowledge.



INSTRUCTION



Cecil F. Bullock

Principal

One of my favorite poems begins with this line, "The choice is always ours." Obviously, in a land as rich as America, opportunities for choice are many. But what should students choose? It seems to me that students today should first choose knowledge. In this field the riches are inexhaustible, enduring, and free. Your choosing knowledge will not lead you to satiety but to a hunger for more.

Choose knowledge then, I would suggest, and become a knowledgeable student. As a result you will be better prepared to live effectively in our free society where the citizen has the moral responsibility to think clearly, to be fearlessly critical when necessary, and to found his life upon those principles of thought and action which are characteristic of the educated man. This freedom to choose is precious.

Cecil F. Bullock

Richard J. West

Vice Principal

Many years ago—long before the age of sputniks and orbiting astronauts—Carl Schurz said, "Ideals are like stars; you will not succeed in touching them with your hands. But like the seafaring man on the desert of waters, you choose them as your guides, and following them you will reach your destiny."

He couldn't know that the day would come when man would be touching the stars. I wonder if in our lives here at Roosevelt we should not make greater effort to reach the goals we have set for ourselves. Genuine respect for the other fellow's rights and opinions, complete dependability in word and deed, integrity as individuals—these are not only ideals we should be reaching for, but goals we should actually be achieving.

Richard J West

Staff personnel mirrors efficiency

Bulletins, letters, and records made typewriter keys click in the main office and in the counseling office. Each period three librarians classified new books and seated approximately 60 students. The Attendance Office secretary checked, recorded, and filed all absences, late arrivals, and early dismissals, while the school nurse worked to give each student an annual check-up and medical aid with temporary illnesses.

To help students live a useful, happy life, the Girls' and Boys' Counselors gave assistance with personal problems at school, at home, and at work. Students with grade and study problems received help from the class counselors as well as advice on high school subject planning.

Historical studies reveal past and present events

Sophomores studied the development of man's civilization, while Juniors concentrated on the history of the United States. In addition to the required course of Contemporary Problems, many Seniors undertook supplementary classes in Economics, Latin America, and Far East.

Educational field trips highlighted Contemporary Problems classes. In the fall, representatives from each class attended the International Relations Conference, where students discussed human relations. In January, the Seattle Planning Commission sponsored a tour for the Contemporary Problems students, concerning urban renewal and Seattle's slum problem. Students also observed the judicial system in practice during a tour to the Superior Court. In April, representatives visited the City Light Diablo Project. Students gained insight and understanding in the many phases of our governmental system.

English classes reflect independent thinking

"Independent thinking." Students aimed for this goal in Language Arts classes. Teachers emphasized organized writing and creativity. To prepare students for the challenge in college, English teachers stressed the exchange of ideas through better written communication and more extensive reading. For the second year, Roosevelt continued the experimental pilot classes, with not more than twenty students in each of the seven classes. Roosevelt welcomed the following five teachers to the English department: Mr. Brink, Mrs. Bryan, Mrs. Wagar, Mrs. Pollock, and Miss Wills.

Math-Science courses meet Space-Age challenge

The "Race for Space" challenged mathematics and science teachers to give students a good background and up-to-date knowledge of basic principles and practical application of them. A course in biology included a survey of living animals and plants, while botany emphasized care and improvement of plants. Chemistry III offered problem solving and experimentation to prepare students for future work in chemistry. Physics students acquired knowledge of sound, light, and electricity. Mr. David Scott received recognition as Washington State Science Teacher of the year. The Mathematics Department offered courses ranging from fundamental algebra to advanced calculus, emphasizing theories. All courses stressed the growing importance of mathematical structure knowledge.

Physical Education emphasizes health habits

"Physical Fitness." Physical Education teachers stressed exercise and sports to promote good general health. Boys shifted their classes to the new gym, while girls used the gyms in the school. This allowed more girls' and boys' classes to be taught. Sophomores experienced the joys and sorrows of taking gym five days a week.

The department added the subjects of weight-lifting and wrestling to the regular boys' curriculum. The active tumbling team, consisting of three girls and thirty boys, practiced every morning at 7:40 in the new gym. The veteran faculty of eleven teachers reached the entire student body through their physical and health education programs, promoting good health rules and habits.

The Business Education department, headed by Miss E. M. Lohren, offered a variety of profitable courses. Students took bookkeeping and retailing as well as typing and shorthand. The department awarded Statement of Proficiency cards to some 20 or 30 students when they received their diplomas. These students completed the eight basic required business courses. In addition, each student chose one of four fields of specialization. Individuals continued with the clerical, retailing, bookkeeping, or secretarial requirements. The Statement of Proficiency card was used as a recommendation and as evidence of qualification by former pupils applying for business positions. All business students drew skill and knowledge from the eighteen business courses.

Creative subjects require talent and interest

The Music Department aimed at improving understanding and appreciation of music through singing and performing. Intermediate and Concert Choirs studied proper use of voice, music reading, and ear training to sing selections from all styles of musical composition. A course in Harmony I and II included melody writing, while the Music Survey class acquired knowledge of music's relation to world culture by listening, studying, and discussing music. Art courses developed skills in the talented and helped the untalented to recognize the significance of beauty. Drawing stressed relationship of seeing, creating, and composing. Print making encompassed silkscreen, wood and plastic engraving, and collagraph. History of Art classes studied people and art from cave painting to contemporary time.
Home Living and Management courses offered keys to social relationships, home preparation, financial management, and child care. Study supervisors and teachers strove to make each study a quiet place to concentrate. "No talking" and "Do homework" encouraged students to make good use of time.

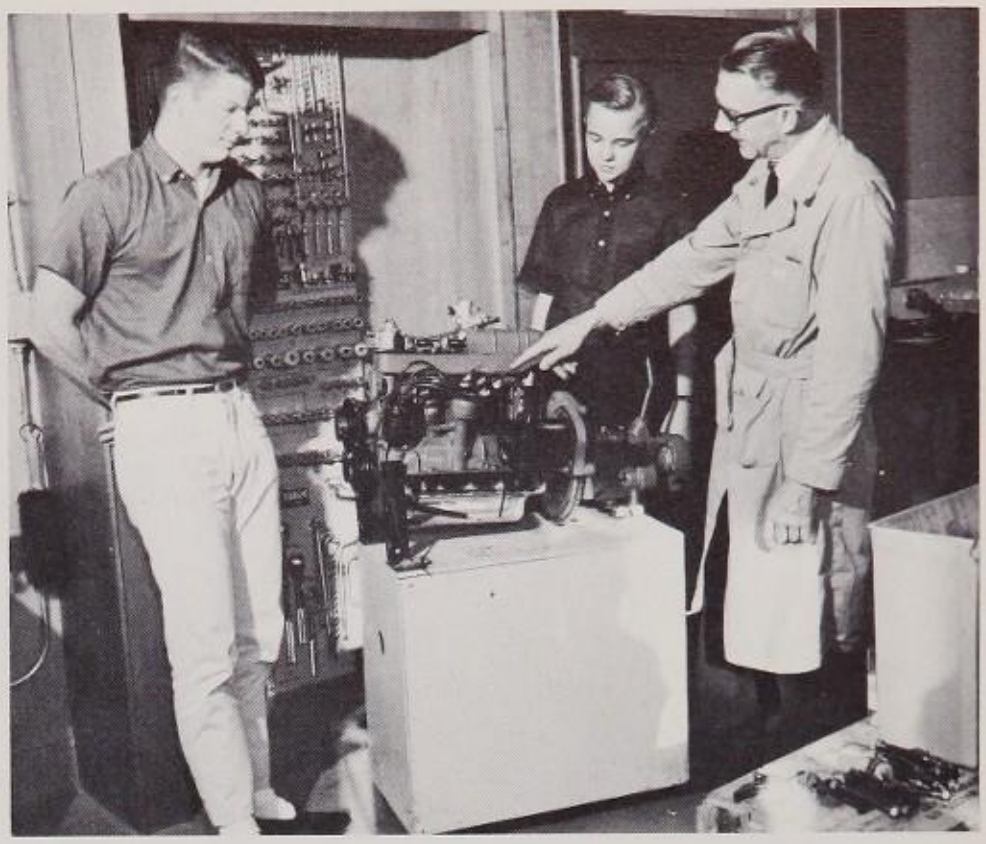
Industrial success reflects technical skills

This year's Strenuous Life featured the Industrial Arts Department headed by Mr. David Burrell. Industrial Arts courses offered experience which proved valuable in many vocational fields and provided skill for home jobs.
A course in electricity stressed an understanding and application of house wiring and electronics, while the metal shop classes offered bench iron work, tool making, and welding. Hand tools and machines helped expand the knowledge of wood-working, while rulers and paints enhanced mechanical drawing techniques. The Senior Play, Revue, and assemblies required props and settings designed and constructed by the Stage Craft class.
Last summer, this department gained the new gas-engine shop along with new equipment. This course included the use of automotive tools, the theory of gas engines, the concepts of trouble shooting, and laboratory operation of functioning engines.



Brian Nielsen and Gary Weston listened attentively as Mr. David Burrell described the gas engine.

Faraway cultures explored through foreign languages

Beginning courses and continuation studies offered French, German, Latin, Spanish, and Russian as academic electives. Students found a new emphasis in comprehending the spoken language, a fluency in speaking it, and an ability to read and write it.

From Marseilles, France, came Mr. Marcel Sarde, Roosevelt's first exchange teacher. Educated in Marseilles and at the University of Aix en Provence, he taught English at the Lycée Saint Charles. Sky high prices, emphasis on good citizenship, and enthusiastic school spirit during sports competition were three aspects he took home from America.

A proposed trip to Greece induced Miss Gail Ingle to take a course in Modern Greek from a private tutor. The National Defense Education Act of 1958 enabled Mr. Igor Gladstone to visit Russia last summer. Swimming in the Volga River, visiting the Kremlin, and being able to take 1200 pictures were outstanding memories of his six weeks in the Soviet Union.

"C'est merveilleux!" exclaims Mr. Marcel Sarde as Willie Ellis points to the Language Lab controls.

Steam cauldrons for hot dishes, ovens for baked foods, and long counters aided fourteen cooks, working from 7:30 AM to 2:30 PM. Their objective was a well balanced diet, prepared from a menu planned by Mrs. Helen Scott, lunchroom manager.

Participation in ASR augments students' understanding of democracy

At 8:10 in the auditorium balcony every Wednesday morning, Student Council members began their meeting with a flag salute.

Balloons symbolized ASR's theme "Skyward Ho!" presented in the Orientation Assembly. The officers planned the assembly, which explained the branches and purposes of ASR to new students. They also held three leadership conferences. Committee chairmen sponsored several projects, including Tidy Teddy Week and an ASR Dance.

Cabinet, consisting of heads of leading school organizations, is ASR's Senate. It discussed school problems and promoted ASR projects. Student Council, the House of Representatives, gave each student a voice in ASR through roll room representation. Resulting decisions were music in the lunchroom, election of next year's exchange student and Inter-High representatives, and the Student Bulletin Committee. The president of Lettermen's Club became a permanent voting member of Cabinet. Advisory Council, ASR's Judiciary Branch, provided student-to-student discipline and offered advice on individual problems. This year, in addition to lunchroom, study hall, and library problems, it handled assembly and classroom cases and school dress rules. Inter-High Council offered a forum for discussion of common problems of Seattle public high schools. Roosevelt's representatives met monthly with representatives of other schools in the Administration Building.

Many groups combine power for progress

Color Week, in commemoration of Teddy Roosevelt, was the chief purpose of the Traditions Committee. Another committee which annually conducts a weekly drive was the Traffic Safety Committee. During this period the committee helped the students become aware of traffic problems through daily activities, literature, and an informative assembly.

Planning and co-ordinating the assemblies was the responsibility of the Assembly Committee. Numerous programs of wide variety informed and entertained the student body throughout the year. Pep Assemblies, with skits, songs, yells, and victory signs, were the primary ways in which the Sports Boosters Committee aroused school spirit. Co-ordination of these and all other ASR activities was the work of the Activity Recording Committee.

Roosevelt International Relations Organization developed international friendship and understanding of different cultures, providing talks by foreign students on France, Mexico, and Japan. Marseilles Affiliation Committee, which maintained the exchange program, was composed of the following six sub-committees: Publicity, Finance, Selections, Projects, and Host.

Five foreign language clubs acquainted students with the customs and cultures of their respective countries. German Club relived customs by having a Christmas party, visiting a German restaurant, and seeing a German movie. Fellow Romans of the Latin Club participated in a slave sale and a Roman Banquet. Russian Club had a traditional dinner, "Borsch Blast," at the Russian Community Center. Spanish Club celebrated at a Pinata Party and again on Pan American Day, April 13th. Observing the "Day of the Kings," participating in the French Revue, and meeting with other schools' clubs, comprised the activities of the French Club.

The Camera Club took pictures for Hall of Fame Committee, Strenuous Life, and News, using their new electronic flash unit. Members did their own photo processing and enlarging in Room 216. Bulletin Board Committee made students aware of activities such as Great Issues, drives, games, and productions.

Sterling students spur school service

Subdued conversationalists, discouraged gum chewers, and a dwindling number of tardy students were the results of the job done by this year's study supervisors. Behind the counter of the Main Office, girls tended the switchboard, acted as receptionists, and busied themselves with a continuous rush of filing and of carrying messages.

The Attendance Office assistants filed and acted as receptionists and typists. They also looked after the attendance records and tardies for all the students. For an hour each day the twenty-four girls in the Library Club kept the library efficiently operating. They assisted in the circulation and shelving of books. Two groups of boys, who did their job to assist the school, were the Audio Visual and Book Room squads. The former distributed and showed films; the latter kept charge of books and looked after supplies.

Call of service stirs groups into action

With jobs as varied as picking up gum wrappers to setting up tables, Building and Ground Improvement Committee, Counseling Office workers, Study Hall Checkers, and TR'S performed vital services within the school. Building and Ground Improvement Committee, this year acting as one committee instead of two, was responsible for keeping Roosevelt and the surrounding community clean. Sponsoring clean-up drives, the committee strove to promote better school-community relations.

Counseling Office workers served as receptionists for students, parents, and others who came to the Counseling Office for advice. In addition to working as secretaries, they filed, alphabetized, ran errands, and answered telephones. Study Hall Checkers, chosen like the Counseling Office workers on the basis of character, grades, and the ability to work well with people, performed similar duties, such as checking attendance and running errands. TR's, a group comprised of sophomore and junior boys, aided and accomplished services, such as setting up tables for special activities, adding to the school's smooth functioning.

Committees offer students practice in financial matters

"More money for you in '62" and "Don't rank it—just bank it" were slogans for Thrift Committee's banking drive, held January 8-21. A feature of the drive was a roll room contest to guess the amount of money banked on one Tuesday. Each week committee members collected banking envelopes and reminded students through bulletin notices to bank.

Composed of both students and faculty members, Finance Committee planned the next school year's activity budget from estimates submitted in the spring by the organizations to receive money. This year's budget was approximately $31,600. The committee also aided groups with their budget problems during the year, appropriating extra money if necessary.

Pass Sales Committee publicized the sale of activity cards in the fall through signs, skits, and bulletin notices. Over 94 per cent of the students purchased passes. Ticket Force sold the passes as well as tickets for all Roosevelt functions. This group also punched passes and took tickets at school events. An addition this year was a second ticket office, part of the new gym.

With posters, bulletin notices, back signs, and individual notices, Publicity Committee promoted many ASR projects, including Tidy Teddy Week, Color Week, MAP, an ASR Dance, Great Issues Series, ASR sign-ups, and Campus Day.

Groups exhibit back-stage enthusiasm

"Quiet! Lights! Curtain!" became the long-awaited cry of the Costume Force, Girls' Usher Corps, Make-up Corps, Boys' Usher Corps, and Stage Force before stage productions. Costume Force, seeking a new way to record apparel, organized a cross-indexed card catalogue of costumes. Many of the clothes, which the committee maintained in storage, were ones furnished by the group to be used in various school productions, such as the Revue, Drama Festival, and Senior Play.

In outfits of dark skirts and white blouses, the Girls' Usher Corps attended to the audiences at school productions like the Senior Play, Christmas Program, Drama Festival, Spring Concert, and Baccalaureate by ushering, passing out programs, and seating people. Boys' Usher Corps maintained order at all games and pep assemblies in the new gym. With a new light board, the Stage Force was able to produce many new color combinations in school productions, such as the Drama Festival, Revue, Senior Play, Commencement, and various pep assemblies. Other new equipment aided in the efficiency of the crew to build scenery and to give back-stage help in stage productions.

Committees stress student activities

Spades, a service group devoted to the promotion of interest in therapy and special education, encouraged friendship with handicapped children through social, play, and educational activities. Social Service Committee sponsored UGN canned food, children's home, March of Dimes, and Red Cross drives in order to aid unfortunate people. Hall of Fame Committee featured "Teddy Workers," often unrecognized for their service. The committee brought such groups as the News Staff, Stage Crew, and National Merit Scholarship Finalists to the attention of the student body.

Compass Committee published and distributed a handbook to new students. While informing the new pupils of school traditions, the committee offered publishing experience to its members. Informing the students and teachers on the problem of cheating, Ethical Conduct Committee attempted to guide the school conscience by talks and posters. As a new committee, ASR Bulletin published a daily activity bulletin and distributed it to rolls. Since January, a famous quotation was included at the end of the bulletin.

Interests and hobbies appear in school clubs

The rivalry of rook and pawn, king and queen, was the matter at hand on Wednesday nights at the Chess Club meetings. Beginners had the opportunity to learn the skills of the game, while the experienced members clashed in tournaments. The leading six players defended their title at inter-high chess tournaments. The Radio Club, whose members were interested in ham radio operation, met behind room 310. Here they kept their radio equipment which answered the call of W7GN.

What can be found in the job of teaching is the question examined by the Future Teachers of America. At meetings members were acquainted with the pros and cons of teaching as a career in order to visualize this field more clearly. The Debate Club members practiced among themselves in order to learn the intricacies of debating skill. Inter-high tournaments were the tests of Roosevelt debaters' skills.

A chapter of Quill and Scroll, new to the school this year, recognized those who had done outstanding jobs on publications and worked toward promoting an appreciation for journalism.

Girls' Club endeavors to fulfill "High Hopes"

Providing activities in which all girls had an opportunity to participate and ones which aided in creating individual leadership was the purpose of the Girls' Club. The numerous committees that met weekly performed services for the community and school and provided group participation enjoyed by the girls. "High Hopes," this year's Girls Club theme, developed through the special activities offered. The Holly Berry Tea and Mother-Daughter Banquet were get-togethers for the girls as well as their mothers. The Father-Daughter Banquet was dad's chance to accompany his daughter for the evening. Both the spring and fall Little Conferences were centered around the goal of leadership, aiding the girls in this ability.

Boys' Club bounces in with the Big Stick

The Big Stick, symbol of Boys' Club, returned to the Activity Center after a year of absence and spurred Boys' Club on to a more active year. A new project for the club was the selection of the "Athlete of the Week" during football season, acknowledged in the daily bulletin and school newspaper. On a blustery day in October, cars entered in the Hot Rod Show attracted many admirers on the field. Wishing to make Willie, the exchange student, welcome, the Host Committee accepted invitations from students desiring to take him on trips.

For a change of pace, Boys' Club conducted a social service project at Fircrest, where boys landscaped the grounds and provided transportation for the girls who worked inside. For the betterment of the school, the Boys' and Girls' clubs sponsored the "Big Sweep." The social side of life received attention by the clubs, sponsoring the dance "Stormy Weather." At the traditional Father-Son Dessert, the boys and their fathers heard speakers on skiing and basketball.

Russ McComb and Harley O'Neil, Yell Leaders, surprise John Poitras with the Big Stick, found by Terry Palmer.

Torch Society acknowledges high scholastic honor

Anne Roman and Jean Duval sing "Turn Around" at a Torch Assembly.

"Keep the torch burning and study hard!" This slogan and others appeared in show cases decorated by the Honor Society, while their bulletin boards advertised the coming events of the organization. The annual banquet signs encouraged members to come to the "Spirit of the Twenties" on March 7. Those that attended heard Dr. Roy Willis of the University of Washington speak of the "Twenties." Assemblies, held fifth period, featuring music, skits, and speakers, entertained the society members during the year. Mr. Sarde, the exchange teacher, told of France in the first assembly, and in another Miss Arnold discussed the Dutch educational system.

Beginning a new tradition, the Girls' Club and Torch representatives spoke to Nathan Eckstein students, emphasizing the importance of good grades. Officers distributed questionnaires to members who responded that the Torch Society fulfilled its purpose of acknowledging high scholastic standards.

Spruffs learn joy of serving others

Scholarship, school activities, and recommendations from faculty and former Spurs and Ruffs were membership qualifications for Golden Spurs and Roughriders, honorary service organizations for Seniors. Each Spur spent one hour daily doing school service, working in such places as the library or school offices, and eight hours a semester in community service at Fircrest, Neighborhood House, University Hospital, the Library for the Blind, or the Handicapped Center. Every Ruff spent one hour a month in school and community service. Together Spruffs spent almost 2000 hours in community service the first semester.

Spurs supported at least one school function each month, including MAP, the Christmas Concert, lunchroom music, and the lunchroom clean-up. A committee picked a "Tuff Ruff" each month. Spurs also visited several different churches together. Spur social events included a Spruff get-acquainted party in the summer, a work conference, a Christmas tea, a basketball party, and a breakfast and an installation for new Spurs. Ruffs supervised the lunchroom clean-up and formed their own choir and basketball and baseball teams.

The largest and most complete orchestra on record at Roosevelt completed another busy year of performances. The eighty members played both in the school productions and in other musical events. The orchestra played in the Christmas Concert on December 20, the Band Orchestra Concert on March 29, the Spring Festival on May 17, the commencement exercises in June, and in many assemblies. Selected members of the orchestra played in the All-State Orchestra at the State Convention in Tacoma on February 22-24. Various orchestra members also belonged to the Youth Symphony, Seattle Philharmonic, Thalia; and there were twenty-two in the All-City High School Orchestra.

The Roosevelt Orchestra has a record of superior ratings in regional contests over the past five years and has been featured in guest performances at State and Northwest Music Educators' Conference twice. The Seattle Symphony Orchestra contains members who are graduates of the Roosevelt Orchestra.

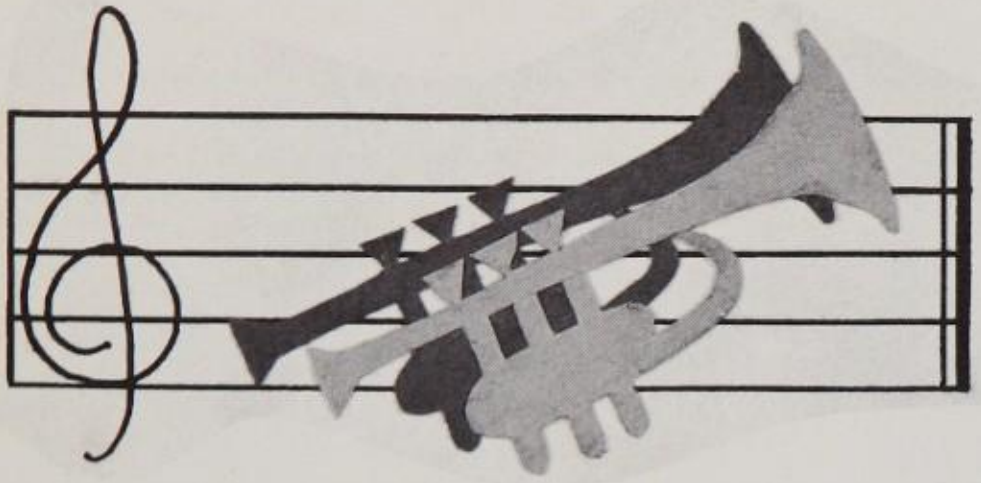
Bang the drums, toot the winds, another year for the band begins



The tones of the band vibrated around room 222 every fourth period. At this time members practiced for such events as the football jamboree and all following football games. At home games they performed on the football field during half-time. The band participated at the dedication of the new gym and also displayed its talent at the reception for President John F. Kennedy when he arrived in Seattle. The school heard the band in the Thanksgiving assembly, the evening Christmas Concert on December 20, the Christmas assembly, and the Band Orchestra Concert in March. The band participated in the All-City Contest Festival and the Spring Music Festival and was the guest band at Abbotsford International Band Festival in Abbotsford, Canada.

Voices echo mellow tones

Led by their director, Mr. David Humphrey, the Concert Choir made numerous appearances this year. The more than fifty members sang at the Thanksgiving and Christmas assemblies. Come Springtime they appeared at the Easter and Memorial Day assemblies. Their voices sounded at the Spring Concert, Baccalaureate, and around the city at music festivals. They ended the year by singing at Commencement. Comprised entirely of girls, the intermediate Choir sang at the Christmas and Spring Concerts.

Roughrider Choir vocalized at the Father-Daughter Banquet and at the Christmas Concert. The members also entertained with an appearance at many school assemblies. Audiences heard the ten members of the Nonettes at several assemblies, the Holly-Berry tea, and at the Washington State Music Educators Convention at Tacoma on February 22-24.

Senior Play produces technical and artistic skill

After six weeks of solid rehearsing, the senior play cast enacted The Diary of Ann Frank on December eighth and ninth. The purpose of the play was to portray the persecution of the Jewish people during World War II and to develop the idea that "people are really good at heart." The cast consisted of twenty seniors, one junior, and a cat. The characters in the play were very difficult to portray since all were older or younger than the actors, and the cast had no idea what it was like to be persecuted. For this reason, the participants in the play read the story and background material and saw slides of Amsterdam. Production posed several difficulties such as four stage areas, including a balcony, and numerous sound and lighting effects. This demanded near professional skill from stage crew, actors, and directors. Mary Peterson and Mary Dorman were the student directors, whose job was to supervise individual rehearsals, prompt, and assist the director.

"Forget it"

"Forget It," this year's Rhythm and Riot Revue, was the fortieth annual talent show staged by Roosevelt students. It played before audiences on February 3 and 4 after many weeks of rehearsal and preparation. Diane Dakan, senior chairman, headed the groups that wrote and produced the Revue. Mr. Strauss helped with the staging and directing as faculty adviser.

After the overture "Camelot" was over, the curtain drew back on scene one, "Yakity! Yak!" a telephone conversation that included singing, dancing and a pantomime. Scene two, "Soft I Scream," was a graveyard scene. It had an interview with Dracula, dancing, vocal, and instrumental numbers. After intermission came "Take Five," a back stage dance rehearsal scene. Acrobatic as well as many other types of dancing and vocalizing highlighted the scene. "All's Riot On The Western Front," was the final scene, a western. Gunslingers, dancehall girls, cowboys with French accents, a ragtime piano, and the now traditional boys' line filled the scene with comedy and drama. With the curtain drawn on the last scene and a fight in the balcony, in which one poor soul was thrown over the edge, the show ended with the finale: "Great Day Coming."

"Oh! My spinal cord!"

"Isn't this fun, Rob?"

Lab Writer reflects the ability of creative students

For six years, Lab Writer, an extra-curricular activity, has published many literary efforts of Roosevelt students. The sixteen members of the editorial board met once a week to consider submitted material. In May, the members chose the best poems, essays, and stories, publishing them in an illustrated booklet. The object of the publication is to present a cross section of the varied viewpoints of the students.

News staffs introduce ingenious innovations

Twenty-six editions of the Roosevelt News, published by the News and Ad Staffs, kept students abreast of school and community news this year. The Ad Staff solicited advertising from local merchants every Tuesday, while the News Staff met fourth period daily with the reporters and editors working feverishly to get the News out by Friday.

An ASR page and editorials concerning matters vital to students were added and increased. During the second semester the News appeared on a better grade, whiter paper; pictures became sharper and clearer due to the better paper. A fashion page and a spread concerning Brotherhood Week were two of the special spreads added to the many "scoops" and new columns such as "Uncensored," "It Would Appear," and "New One Coming Up" that added even more diversity to the News.

Strenuous Life mirrors staff effort and enthusiasm

Last year's Strenuous Life received the honorary Medalist award, the highest recognition given by Columbia University. One of the many essential qualities of a good year book is continuity. This year, the horizontal look appeared in pictures, division pages, wide top and bottom margins, and the special feature, the fold out. Copy, pictures, heds, and art work expressed the theme, Reflections.

To achieve this, the Annual Staff became a miniature business world by meeting deadlines, by dealing with printers and photographers, and by working within a budget. Their goal was to interpret school ideas in a lasting record. Their job was serious business, and the intense working together brought closeness and unity, which was expressed through the many parties and zany escapades. The staffers' lives were rich in traditions, since they were obligated to entertain at staff parties, never reveal the theme, and always "close the hideout door!" Responsibility and fellowship provided much for each staff member to reflect upon in the future.

Grid season reflects good spirit

The fighting Teds wrapped up the season with a gallant 28-6 victory over Franklin, a field goal by Bill Gallaher, and a ninth place in the Metro league. The Green and Golds fell to Queen Anne in the Jamboree and later suffered a 16-0 defeat at the hands of Shoreline. In the last few minutes of play, the Teds broke through the Edmonds' defense for two TD's, making a 13-0 win. The Lynx challenged Roosevelt with two first-half scores, but settled for a 12-12 tie. The West Seattle champs hurled a 32-7 loss to the Teds. A bruised Roosevelt line, led by all-city guard Fred Gall, contained the tough Beavers for the first half, but Les Mueller & Co. marked up a 25-0 win. The Ingraham Rams ripped through the Ted line and ran to a 13-0 victory. Mud, water, and a 6-0 victory over Mountlake Terrace rewarded the Teds in the last regular game of the season.

Ted Junior Varsity displays grid reserve power

The second team reflected Teddy spirit by successfully reinforcing the varsity squad as well as by displaying gridiron talent during its own five game season. The Junior Varsity suffered defeat in its first four games. Undaunted, the spirited Teds fought well against first-place Ballard, but were edged under, losing 14-6. However, they downed second-place Ingraham 14-13 in the final game of the season, finishing in sixth place.

Sophs show promise for a winning varsity

Intramural football attracted twelve active roll room teams this year. The competition, managed by Mr. Leonard Thrapp, ended in a three-way tie with the roll teams of Roys, Shirmer, and Liston sharing the honors. In the playoff, Roys' spirited team won the trophy by a score of 14-8. The third team fought its way to a first-place Metro standing with an undefeated 6-0 record. The energetic Sophomores ended their triumphant season with a 6-0 win over Ingraham, after completely overpowering all other opponents.

Yell and song leaders pep Teds during a gridiron duel.

Rising ruff spirit reflects yell and song leaders' success

"Let's go, let's go—skyward ho!" This was Roosevelt spirit, as green and gold balloons were the colors of enthusiasm in Seattle's high school stadiums and gyms. Guiding this enthusiasm were the yell and song leaders, accompanied by the voices of the Roosevelt student body and the fight of an inspired Teddy team. The steady flow of Roosevelt spirit was the extra pep needed for football and basketball victories.

Besides fulfilling their game-time commitments, the song and yell leaders this year were actively engaged in the promotion of better sportsmanship. On September 9, they represented Roosevelt in the seventh Annual Inter-High Sportsmanship Conference held at Rainier Beach. At a pre-game dessert,North-end leaders made plans for mutual support among their schools during the football jamboree. Spreading Teddy spirit even farther, the songsters made a public appearance on KING TV's Seattle Bandstand. As in previous years, pep exchanges with other schools were also a part of the song and yell leaders' enterprising efforts.

RHO Club continues vigorous vivacity

RHO Club, providing extra recreation for all interested girls, offered the opportunity to earn a Roosevelt letter and to become acquainted with girls of other Seattle schools. Directed by Mrs. Betty MacFarlane and Barbara Bryan, president, the club upheld many traditions. This year's sports included archery, apparatus, basketball, softball, badminton, and volleyball. In addition, members promoted good sportsmanship by participating in "play days" with Helen Bush, November 6, and John Marshall, December 11. RHO members followed another active tradition this year in their promotion of pom pom sales for added sports enthusiasm at football and basketball games.

Cagers stymie challengers

Roosevelt leaped into the season and on the Ballard Beavers. Not discouraged after falling to the city champs, the Teds defeated all other teams except Ingraham in the first round of play. Losing at the hands of the tricky Green and Golds were Edmonds, Lincoln, Mountlake Terrace, and Shoreline. Ballard again wavered by the undaunted Teds in the second round, causing a three-way tie for second place in the Northern Division. In a thrilling down-to-the-wire play-off, the Teds were once more chopped down by the Ingraham Rams.

All-city honors went to Rob Fahnestock, first team guard, and honorable mention to Dick Van Law and Al Murch. Rick Eberhardt received the 101 Club Inspirational Award.

Coached by Mr. Art Wiper, the Junior Varsity took second place in the North End Metro League with a record of 9-3. Several of the players participated in Varsity games.

With a win-loss record of 12-2, the Sophomore team finished in first place. Featuring such players as Ward Bushnell and Steve Looney, coach Ben Snowden said that this was one of the finest teams he has ever handled and predicted a winning varsity in coming years.

Intramural basketball was divided into two rounds by Mr. Leonard Thrapp, supervisor. One was composed of 20 roll room teams, and the other, attracting 26 teams, was open to all boys. Rasmussen's Roll-Plus-Two took the Jr.-Sr. trophy, and Snowden's roll captured the Sophomore crown.

Intramural sports life shows action

The Roosevelt intramural sports program, guided by Mr. Leonard Thrapp, provided vast sources of activity and extra enjoyment. The annual ping pong tournament, held during January 29 to February 16, drew twenty-five participants, and at the conclusion of a double elimination the following winners were: singles, Dennis Quiring; doubles, Quiring-Robinson. A series of bowling leagues, formed from Roosevelt applicants, took part in league competition on each Wednesday during the greater part of the school season.

Included in the outdoor sports program were activities ranging from swimming to sliding down snow-covered slopes. The Teddy "fish," after capturing all-city summer honors, again swam strongly in the winter metro meets. Numerous Roosevelt "schuss-boomers" participated in weekly ski races at nearby passes, winning additional honors for Roosevelt. Another vivacious and successful sports group, composed of Ted rowers from the Green Lake Crew, competed in out-of-state meets as well as with other schools of the Seattle district.

Individual efforts yield team achievement

Inspiration and ability were both part of Roosevelt's entry into the Cross Country Metro League in the fall of 1961. Coach Art Wiper molded a fine varsity squad, establishing a good 3-3 record in the Northern Division. With the Junior Varsity and returning lettermen, Roosevelt's cross country future seems bright. Members of the 100 Mile Club again competed for the distance trophy. This year's persistent runner was Mike Felber.

Roosevelt's tennis team did remarkably well during the spring of 1962. After defeating Edmonds 9-0, Ted racketeers won three practice matches, losing their second metro match to Lincoln and then defeating Ballard 7-2. Roosevelt had hopes of placing at least second in the Northern Division.

John Rushing's 1962 golf clubbers comprised one of the largest teams in Roosevelt's history. Having teed off the season by routing Garfield, Franklin, West Seattle, and Ballard, prospects of Northern Division supremacy looked good; and with this success loomed the sound possibility of grasping the city championship.

The Junior Varsity has vanquished all comers for the eighteenth time in a row. At the beginning of the '62 season, the noted niners, led by pitcher Don Lewison, shattered Ingraham's hopes by a 5-4 margin. The junior baggers copped another win over Shoreline with the whirling arm of Steve Looney. Edmonds marked the eighteenth notch on the Teddy totem pole.

A breathtaking ninety-five second Monorail ride, at speeds approaching sixty miles per hour, brings visitors at a rate of ten thousand an hour over the one-mile route from downtown Seattle to the grounds of the Century 21 Exposition. The Seattle World's Fair is the first United States exposition in twenty-three years and the first in the Pacific Northwest since 1909. Having received the sanction of the International Bureau of Expositions, the Fair has forty foreign nations participating. Covering a seventy-four-acre site in metropolitan Seattle and valued at eighty million dollars, the Exposition is organized in five worlds which convey the theme "Man in the Space Age."

The World of Century 21 is housed in the Washington State Coliseum, a massive structure enclosing over four acres without interior roof supports. Visitors enter the exhibit, a "floating city" of aluminum cubes, in groups of one hundred, via giant "bubbleators" to see how man will live, work, play, and travel in the year A.D. 2000.

In the World of Science, the Federal government has erected the largest science exhibit in history. The exhibit is entered by passing under five one hundred foot, concrete lace topped arches. Consisting of a series of five buildings, the exhibit demonstrates the history, development, methods, and horizons of science. A Spacearium features an imaginary space trip covering a distance of two billion light years in ten minutes. The film which portrays the journey is projected on a hemispherical screen surrounding the audience.

The World of Commerce and Industry consists of exhibits by industry, both foreign and domestic. The world of Art is a display of classic and contemporary paintings, sculptures, and other fine-art objects valued at twenty million dollars.

The World of Entertainment, featuring a Gayway involving exotic rides new to this country, completes America's Space-Age World's Fair. Celebrities of world-wide fame entertain audiences in Seattle's renovated three thousand seat Opera House. Also included are a Food Circus and an assortment of eating establishments of all types, dominated by Seattle's new landmark, the 600-foot Space Needle.

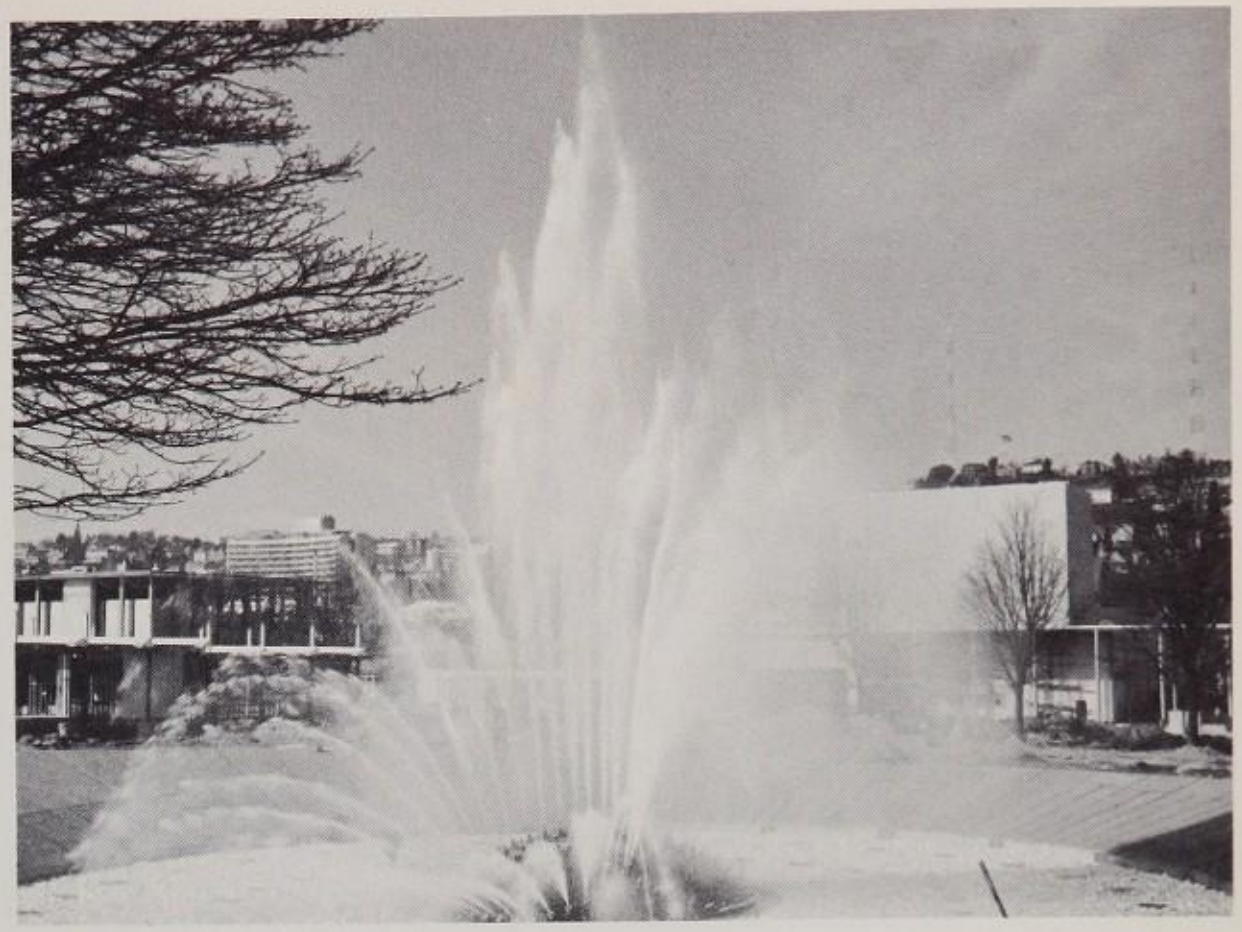
SEATTLE WORLD'S FAIR



Seattle's new 250,000 dollar fountain will remain part of the civic center after the Fair.

Century 21 Exposition reflects the future

The six-hundred-foot Space Needle, topped by a revolving restaurant, towers above the Fair.

Five one-hundred-foot Gothic arches adorn the plaza of the Federal Science Pavillion.

Rats.

Even the almighty Student Pass can't get a Teddy on the elevator.

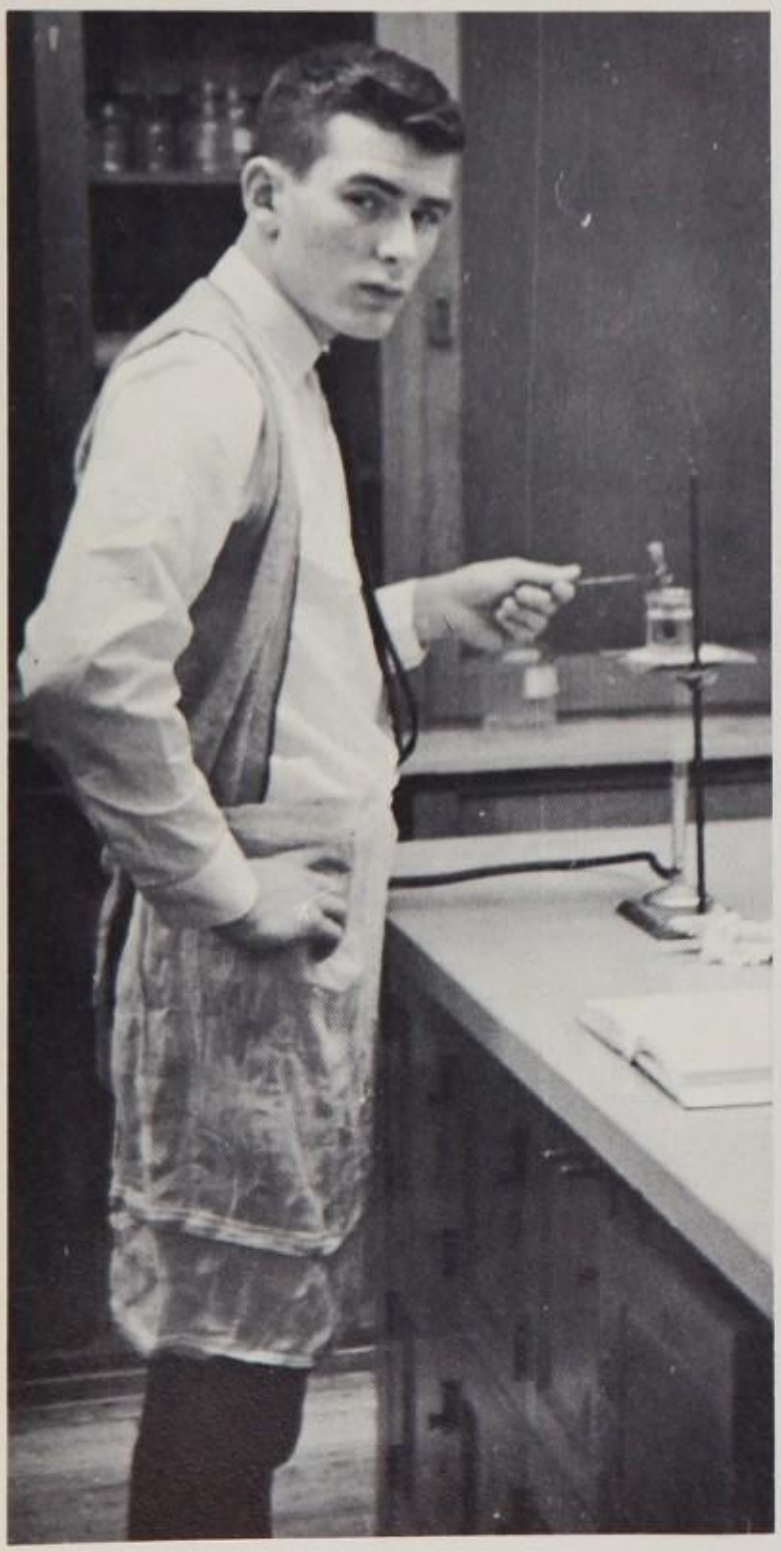
The hardest part of skiing is waiting in line.

Winter brought sports and classroom clowning

The Seattle Symphony Orchestra visited Roosevelt for a Family Concert.

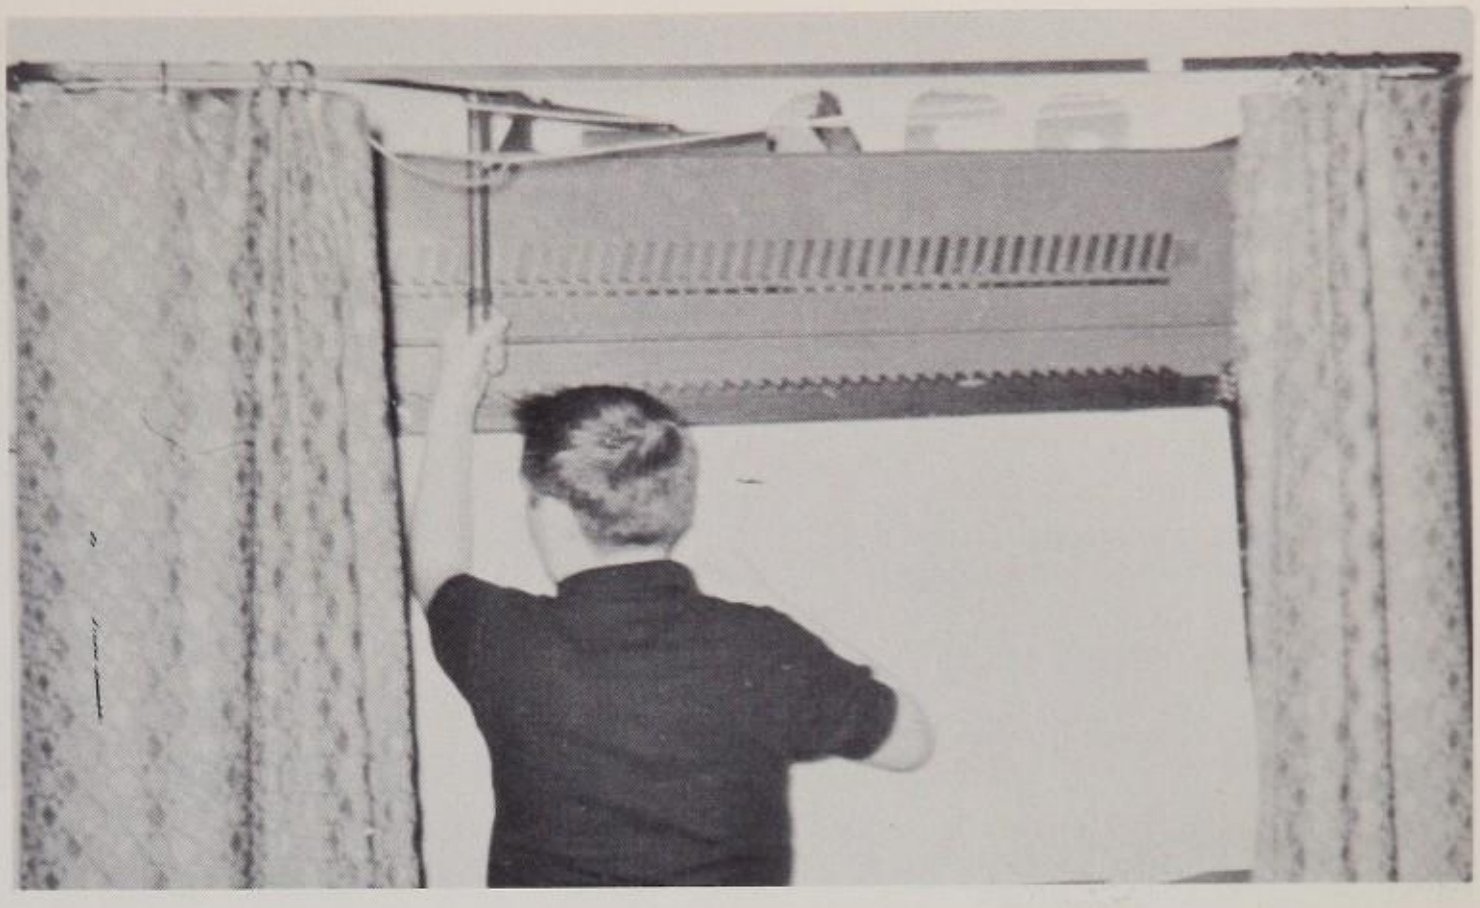
P-TA Ski-Schoolers get carried away on the slalom course.

Dr. Frank Williston spoke on southeast Asia for the Great Issues Series.



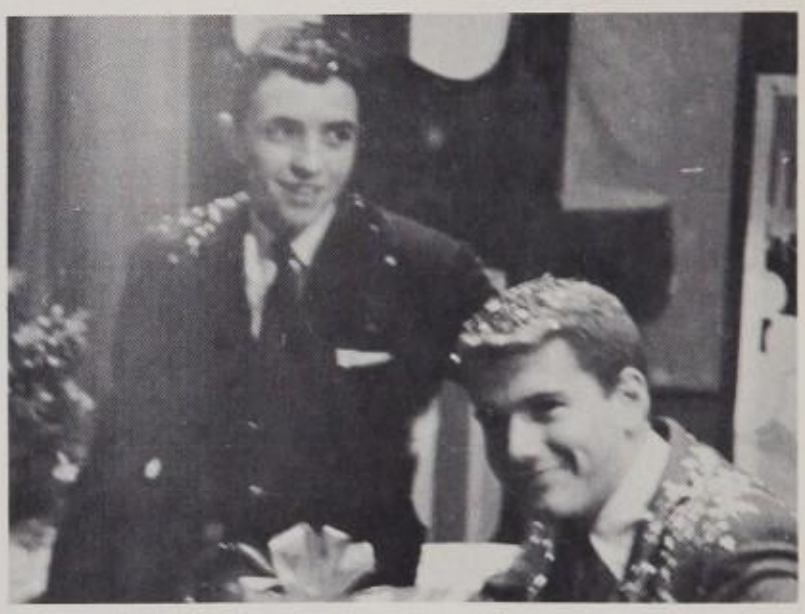
"Coffee, tea or milk?"

Twenty-seven hundred students at one assembly? Impossible!



It's difficult to vote for an exchange student when the curtains won't close.

Exchange student success reflects international interest



Willie Ellis of France and Bill Fletcher of America, exchange students, received applause and confetti at the Marseilles Revue.

MAP, Marseilles Affiliation Program, sponsored a used-book sale to raise funds for student exchanges.

"Where are we?" Bewildered Franklin exchange students seek help from a Compass.

And the banned played on in snowman's land.

Spring brought seasoned spirit

But the levy did pass! There are plenty of tables in the Rim Room.

Senior car washes lowered the price of the prom about twenty-five cents.

The winner of the Marathon Lurk guards Roosevelt's main entrance.

An object lesson adds life to world history.

Graduating seniors reflect upon their past at Roosevelt and anticipate the future.

Janet Sage, ASR representative; Judi Mayer, secretary; Miss Virginia Hardy, adviser; Ed Skone, treasurer; Annie Stokes, vice-president; and Steve Morgan, president, guided the Sophomore class through the perils of its first year at Roosevelt.

To get acquainted with other north-end schools, they sent "Hello" and Thanksgiving day cards and hosted a Sophomore Leadership Conference. The theme of the conference, held on February 7, was "Snow-Bound." Ten days later, the ambitious class sponsored the February ASR dance, "Tuff Enuff." In the spring the Sophomores climaxed their active year by having a Sophomore Day.

Eager Juniors acclaim activities

Elected to open the portals of success for the Junior Class were the officers: Jim Short, vice-president; Mrs. Kay Barber, adviser; Mary Ann Robblee, treasurer; Elaine Sailor, ASR representative; Virginia Crow, secretary; and Steve Lull, president. Of the 832 members of the class, 90 Juniors received Torch pins.

Following class committee sign-ups, preparations for the Junior-Senior Dance began immediately. "Moonlight Mist" was held on January 27 at the Swedish Club. Lamp-posts lit the dance floor as the members of classes '62 and '63 whirled to the music of John Erickson.

Memories recall the last year

With the theme "Memories are Made of This" in mind, Miss Spady, adviser; Ron Abramson, president; Cathy Campbell, vice president; Randi Opsahl, secretary; Barbara Amick, treasurer; and Diane Cain, ASR representative, worked to create memorable events for the class of '62.

The class cabinet made candy to sell to patrons of the revue "Forget It" on February 2 and 3. Other money-making projects included three carwashes, one in the fall and two in the spring.

Seniors lunched in the atmosphere of "Thanks for the Memory" in the Hub ballroom on May 16. On May 25, they embarked for Sunset Lodge on Bainbridge Island to dine and participate in Senior Day activities. Oriental decorations climaxed the year with "Shangri-la" at the Hub on the evening of June 8.

Dear Martha,
you're really
Just think, you're almost out of this

Marty,

I've got so much that I'd like to say. Some maybe not in here. But that's O.K. These years sure have been fun, but I'm certainly glad they're over and I wouldn't want to go through them again. We never were in any classes together - so its kind of strange how we've become such good friends. You're been such a help to me - like giving me strength and courage for such matters as a certain person!! Oh well, like I said, two more weeks —. I hope we can get together with you and George real often this summer. The four of us will probably all be working, but somehow maybe we can find time. Really, the picnic on the 9th of June will be a memorable occassion. Only last year it was on the 3rd. It's been a whole year now that Dick and I have been together. He and I have an awful lot to thank you for. So many times we recall all the fun we had that day - And because of you, how much happiness he and I have shared. I love him so much - thanks a lot. He won't ever forget it. Maybe that's what made you and I such good friends.

I was sure glad and kind of surprised that you had the courage to tell me about a certain matter and for Dick and I to help you and George out of it. Maybe someday you can be in ours. Ha-ha, but you'll have a long wait. But someday, the time will come.

Thanks for all you've donee for me. I wish you the best of luck always; and for you and George, all the happiness in the world throughout your lives.

Your friend always,

Sue
